

ANTI-TRADE UNION VIOLENCE IN COLOMBIA: JUST THE FACTS

- Colombia is the most dangerous place in the world for trade unionists – a fact that is undisputed. Over 60% of all trade unionists killed in the world are Colombian.
- The Colombian authorities argue that the situation is improving. However, the reality is somewhat different.

On the reverse of this sheet are the names and details of the 166 Colombian trade unionists who have been murdered since 2007. All of them were killed because of their trade union activity.

- The Colombian authorities claim that the actual figures are considerably lower – an apparent attempt to mislead the international community.
- Virtually nobody is ever punished for committing abuses against trade unionists in Colombia. In 95% of cases the perpetrators enjoy complete impunity – a green light for the killings to continue.
- Though special units and commissions to investigate the killings have been established, in reality these bodies deliver few results. Rather than tackling the situation, the Colombian regime devotes its resources to PR campaigns aimed at downplaying the problem.
- The international community needs to take action. If they do not, trade unionists in Colombia will continue to die and those responsible will continue to escape punishment. Rewarding the Colombian regime with a Free Trade Agreement would send completely the wrong message.

It is time for the killings to stop

No Free Trade Agreements with Colombia

- Justice for Colombia' (JFC) is a British-based human rights organization supported by the British Trades Union Congress (TUC)
- Workers Uniting is the name of the new international trade union created by Unite, the largest union in the UK and Ireland, and the United Steelworkers, the largest private sector union in the US and Canada. It represents 3 million members.
- The Central Unitaria de Trabajadores (CUT) is the principle trade union confederation in Colombia, with over 700 affiliated trade unions.
